

Japs Missed Opportunity At Pearl Harbor---Too Late Now

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(AP)—The Navy's revelation of the magnitude of the disaster at Pearl Harbor made clear today that the Japanese missed a prime opportunity to destroy immediate American seapower in the Pacific and perhaps seize Hawaii.

The American warships still able to fight might all have been lost had the Japanese main fleet sought out and engaged them. An invasion of Hawaii, or even a raid in force aimed at final execution of the crippled ships, might well have been successful.

3 Blue Lions Get Honorable Mention on All-Ohio

-Spying- On Sports

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—There's material for a mile of columns in this date, and in what has happened to the sports world since Pearl Harbor Day a year ago... So today's space will be turned over to the service dept. . . . And did you notice that the signal which sent American forces into action in Northern Africa was "play ball?"

Capt. Gordon Simpson, hailed as the first American to land in Morocco, was a star halfback on the University of Kentucky football team in 1937.

The crack basketball teams of the Norfolk Naval Training Station and the Norfolk Naval Air Station will reverse the usual procedure next Friday when they play for the benefit of a Christmas fund sponsored by Norfolk newspapers. Fort Story's team also will be on the card. Many of the past year's sports events have been for army and navy benefits... When Barney Olsen, former Chicago Cubs outfielder, reported at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station, he was assigned to duties under Seaman Fido Murphy... "What you again?" bellowed Barney... The last time they had met was when Olsen was playing for Moline in the Three-Eye League and Murphy, an umpire, chased him from the game.

Two of the finest tributes received by Georgia's Rose Bowl-bound football team at the end of the season were cables from Alumni in the combat zones... One from Northern Africa said: "Congratulations on a great season. Please send Charlie Trippi over here to help us catch Rommel. At present he is running like hell" . . . Another from England said: "We'll meet you after the Rose Bowl game in either Berlin or Tokyo."

Changes Made in Bowling

The Warner Service team, which made a clean sweep of its match last week, rose to undisputed first place in the Industrial League while the Cleo Cola, who dropped one of their games in last week's match, dropped out of the three-way tie to start the current round of bowling in second place in the standing. The Eastern Corn Pioneers, suffered a collapse last week, losing all three of their games to slump to the No. 3 spot in the standing. These three teams started last week on even terms at the top of the loop.

The other three teams in the league did not change their status. In the Ladies League, Craig's Air Steppers climbed over the Hawkinson Retreaders to start this week in the No. 2 spot in standings but, in spite of losing two out of three games last week Light's Dairymaids remained at the head of the list by a narrow margin.

Lloyd's Marketeers, by making a clean sweep of their match last week, hopped over the Montgomery Ward girls to take fourth place. The positions of the other three teams in the eight-team league remained unchanged.

Team Chosen From Among 16,116 Boys

Bob Allen, Pershing Mann
And Paul Shoultz Are Given Recognition

Three of the Blue Lions who helped bring the South Central Ohio League football crown to Washington C. H. High School this season won places on the Associated Press' mythical All-Ohio High School team which is recognized as official by the Ohio High School Football Coaches' Association.

The team was compiled by Fritz Howell, A. P. sports editor of the Columbus Bureau on the basis of a poll.

Bob Allen, captain and center of the Blue Lions, was among the boys playing that position to get honorable mention. And, from the Blue Lion backfield, the line-smashing, place kicking Pershing Mann and the dazzling open field running Paul Shoultz were selected from the hundreds of ball carriers in the state for outstanding play.

The Blue Lions, the supporters point out, follow somewhat the pattern of Ohio State's Big Ten champions in playing as a team rather than the supporting cast for individual stars, although both the Bucks and Lions had boys in both line and backfield who could easily have been spotlighted.

With 16,116 boys from 479 schools battling it out for the honor of berths, the club was harder to "make" than the All-American college team which annually is selected almost exclusively from the major university talent.

For the first time in years 11 different schools are represented on the first team—and a junior player crashed the heights. The junior is Bob Lucas of Paulding, the bald-headed Negro lad who scored 279 points to lead the nation's gridgers in the point column. He grabbed the fullback spot from one of the finest arrays of talent the state has seen in a decade.

The northeastern quarter of the state walked off with the major portion of the first team laurels as Steubenville, Canton McKinley, Akron West, Lakewood, East Cleveland Shaw, Coshocton, Massillon and Niles placed stars on the varsity. The three others are from the northwestern sector, with Bellefontaine, Paulding and Toledo Libbey gaining one berth each.

Team records went into the discard in the individual talent selections, which were made with the aid of more than 300 coaches and newspapermen. Only one player of each 1500 was able to win through to a first team selection, forcing many outstanding stars to be content with secondary or honorable mention berths.

The "varsity" has everything, including a line averaging 187 pounds and a speedy backfield stacking up at 165. High-scoring was not the No. 1 requisite in gaining a backfield berth, for Fred Cardinal, Massillon's great blocking quarterback who counted only 23 points, was named the top man at the signal-calling post.

Two triple-threat luminaries, Jim Foltz of Toledo Libbey and Paul Zorn of Niles, nosed out a flock of sterling backs for the two halfback jobs, and high-scoring Lucas rounded out the ball-toting corps.

Two six-footers—Bob Mason of Bellefontaine and Bill Totsch, of Coshocton—won the end positions; the tackles are Dick Lashley of Steubenville's surprising comeback squad, and Angelo Gaudio of East Cleveland Shaw; the No. 1 guards are George Schuster of Canton McKinley, and Mike Kevedy of Lakewood, while the center position went to Bob Erben of Akron West—the rubber city's outstanding lineman.

FUTURE IS UNCERTAIN FOR MINOR BASEBALL

EBENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 7.—(AP)—The wartime fate of the mid-Atlantic and other minor baseball leagues depends upon developments of the next two months, says Elmer M. Daily, president of both the Mid-Atlantic and the Penn State circuits. Miami Open Won By McSpaden — May Be Last One

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 7.—(AP)—A thousand dollars in war bonds was Harold McSpaden's reward today for a hard-earned victory in what may have been the last golf tournament for the duration to bear a reasonable resemblance to peacetime resort events.

Only a handful of name professionals matched shots with McSpaden in the four-day, $5,000 Miami Open, and most of them told of plans for joining the numerous links stars who already have entered the armed forces or undertaken defense work.

McSpaden fired a four under par 66 yesterday to total a 72-hole card of 272—four strokes ahead of Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill.

Sport Remodeled To War Pattern

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—(AP)—A year ago today... Pearl Harbor. Despite the early-death rumors for sports immediately after the Japs' unannounced visit to Hawaii, the nation-wide interest in athletics continues today and the sports world—remodeled in spots and revamped in others—goes on in the three-fold war purpose of (1) furnishing entertainment and bolstering morale, (2) raising relief funds and (3) conditioning prospective fighters.

So let's make a brief check to see what has happened to sports and what sports has made happen in the past 12 months. Boxing—one of the most maligned peace time sports contributed spectacularly. Heavyweight champion Joe Louis twice put his title on the line for war relief without charge. Louis, challenger Billy Conn, light heavyweight king Gus Lesnevich, middleweight champion Tony Zale and welterweight champ Fred (Freddie) Cochrane among others, in the service.

Racing—Another often discredited sport in times of peace. Made cash contribution of $2,500,000 to war relief. Baseball—Received now famous "green-light" letter from President Roosevelt last January and its sturdy determination last spring probably carried entire sports program in early months of war.

Football — Contributed hundreds of coaches to the services' physical departments, untold thousands of athletic young men to the ranks and unestimated sum of cash to relief. Golf—Ruling body gave up its national championship program but sent its professionals out for relief exhibitions and its amateurs to digging divots for same cause. Virtually the only outright casualties were the Pan American games, automobile and boat racing. And they were dropped only because they consumed gasoline which Uncle Sam needs for his fighting nephews.

TOLEDO, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Goransen's 20 alleys of Chicago took top team honors in the Women's Central States Bowling Tournament which ended here yesterday. They finished with 2996, Detroit's doubles team of A. Miller and M. Maxton copped the doubles title with 1271, and Irene Flowers of Toledo led in the singles with 685.

FURNISHING EQUIPMENT
For a bunch of rank amateurs, the American Service of Supply has shown a pretty keen grasp of that least known of the military sciences called "logistics." Early Nazi successes resulted as much from the skillful application of logistics as from the weight of planes, tanks and guns. The Japs, under different circumstances, used logistics in a strictly professional manner, to our great detriment. Weapons are of use only where the war is being fought.

But neither of these ever carried out a major amphibious attack, which is by far the most difficult type of all, with more certainty and precision and success than did the Americans when they moved in on North Africa. Logistics is the science of transporting, quartering and supplying troops. There was a time when it was relatively unimportant. But not today. It would be mass murder under modern conditions to move troops under an established enemy unless with them they had the necessary weapons, munitions, food stuffs, and other supplies, plus replacements, and repair parts and facilities.

Converging simultaneously upon various widely separated beachheads in Africa came men and materiel from Britain and from the United States. Their movements were so carefully correlated that no detachment had to land without possessing every weapon assigned to it. And ever since the initial blow, the Service of Supply has kept men, armaments, munitions and other supplies flowing in a constant stream, notwithstanding the inherent difficulties plus every hindrance the Axis could place in the way.

The achievement is the more remarkable because it was the first real test of our leadership, was done without opportunity for such practice, and because it involved movements of a mileage greater than anything the Nazis ever have attempted.

Donn Sutton, editor of NEA Service, in an exclusive interview with Maj.-Gen. John C. H. Lee, has told some of the amazing detail with which the logistics of the North African attack were worked out.

Behind General Lee, as head of the entire Service of Supply, stands Lieut.-Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, whose rise in rank has been probably the most phenomenal in U. S. military history. A lieutenant-colonel when the war began, he still is only a colonel in permanent rank. Yet he is supervising one of the most tremendous jobs ever given to any soldier of any rank, and supervising it exceedingly well.

To General Somervell, to General

Washington at a Glance
By Charles P. Stewart
WASHINGTON — Some folk say that we worry too much concerning post-war conditions. Their contention is that licking the Axis is the immediate job in hand and that stewing about the future distracts our attention from it. Let's concentrate on fighting, they urge, leaving ultimate economics to be attended to when the time comes. Believe me, the English haven't any such complex. Their first aim's to smash the enemy, certainly, but they evidently don't see any harm in delegating a few militarily over-aged but still commercially alert individuals to do plenty of advance thinking relative to an undelayed campaign for British trade's recovery the minute the physical conflict's over. They have a National Manufacturers' association, just as we have. It's had this trade question under scrutiny, precisely as our association has, only a lot more intensively. Furthermore, whereas our NMA has been more or less criticized, as doing its planning overly far ahead, the English outfit is getting all sorts of encouragement, from the press, the public and the government. It's true that foreign trade is vital to Britain to an extent

Color Blindness, Only in Males, Hereditary
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
COLOR BLINDNESS is a congenital, probably hereditary, inability to distinguish colors, especially red and green. It occurs exclusively in males. A few cases

Dr. Clending has answered questions of general interest only, and then only through his column. have been reported in women but all of these reports are subject to some criticism. In the examination of candidates as railway employees, it has been found that about 2 per cent are more or less color-blind.

In the eye are three kinds of nerve fibers which respond to color sensations. Stimulation of one produces the sensation of red; stimulation of the second, green, and of the third, the sensation of violet. Sensations of orange, yellow and blue are produced by different combinations of the stimulation of these three primary fibers. Thus, yellow results from the stimulation of red and green fibers and blue results from the stimulation of green and violet fibers.

Total color blindness is very rare. The perception of colors is absolutely wanting—the individual being unable to perceive the difference between darkness and light but not variations in the intensity of light. Partial or incomplete color blindness may have to do with red, green or violet blindness, but usually the individual mixes up reds and greens.

Some Unaware
The color-blind person lives in a peculiar world. Often he may be unaware of this peculiarity until late in life. A doctor wrote in to an oculist saying that his wife thought he was deficient in color perception. The oculist sent him some test words and asked him to match them. The matches he sent in were very amusing, fully substantiating the lady's opinion and diagnosis.

Dalton, who first described color blindness in his own person, said: "Scarlet, in most cases, I can distinguish, but a dark bottle green I could not, with certainty, from brown. Dark yellow I know; light yellows I might confuse with

Perfume Pointers
A few tips on cologne and perfume: Match the fragrance of one to the other. A mixture of different odors can be offensive. When you apply either, put it on your skin where it will continue to give off fragrance from the warmth of your body. Try a touch behind the ears, along the hairline and at the back of your neck. Perfumes and colognes not only stain cloth, but the odor disappears quickly.

Embattled Love
BY LORENA CARLETON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
A chance meeting in the...
PAIGE SHELTON, whose sweetheart has just been killed fighting for the Allies and...
RESTWICK (RUSTY) CARNES III, wealthy descendant of early Hawaiian settlers. Rusty married to spite the girl he thinks he loves, EUGENIA NORTH, his selfish fiancée.
YESTERDAY, Paige catches Eugenia starting at her from an adjoining lanai.
CHAPTER NINE
NOT UNTIL Paige leaped to her feet did Eugenia dart back, screening herself behind the folded glass doors. For one frozen moment the dark-haired girl stood watching and listening, but the same sounds of hilarity filtered through to her private porch. It was as if nothing had happened.
Now that she knew Eugenia was there, the low foghorn sound of her voice became audible and recognizable. Paige heard her cry out, "Let's all be gay! Get me a drink, someone."
She must have known the naval officers previously, pondered Paige. If not, she was a fast worker to wangle an invitation to the so-convenient next-door suite. Paige's heart prodded her by beating like a trip hammer.
With a blind start she stepped over the high door ledge and went into the bedroom, slamming the glass and iron door hard after her.
There was something unwholesome about the angelically tinted Eugenia. And she was a danger. Paige knew that. Again she managed to move, this time toward the outside door. But just as she emerged into the narrow hallway the exclamatory latins almost collided with her on their way back into their quarters. This time they were accompanied by a ship's officer, who beckoned peremptorily to the steward. The door closed behind the entire party.
Paige had drawn back when she first noticed the over-excited gesticulating group. Now she shut her own door with gentle caution. Having decided not to go out, she went to the desk and began little thank-you notes for the remembrances. A fantastic bit of business, she considered it, inasmuch as the gifts were intended for Eugenia.
Rusty came in and found her occupied with that duty. "Did you have lunch?" he wanted to know. "Not with you!"
"I know that naturally!" He dumped a tremendous pile of quarters from a slot machine into a desk drawer. "I really intended to come back much earlier, but there's an absolute mob of friends sailing with us."
Paige looked up and gave him a direct gaze. "I've had a little attention, too."
"Really? From whom?"
"Eugenia."
His hands pounded together in uproarious satisfaction. "Hoora! Joy! Glad! And all such stuff. Where did it all happen?"
"Right here," Paige laid down her pen and began to explain. But she got no farther than the fact that Eugenia was next door. Bounding to the door that separated their two rooms, Rusty Carnes all but leaped through and soon was leaning over the rail calling back to Paige in a voice filled with honeyed tenderness. "Darling, come out here. I'm lonely when I'm away from you for a single second."
Because she knew it meant so much to the man, Paige followed him with a matching sprightliness, prepared to assist him in a romantic tableau.
"I know, my sweet. I feel the same way."
Instantly his arm was about her in a circle so effective and strong that no one in wildest dreams would recognize a pseudo love.
Paige did not say much after her rapturous reply. All the same, her response was satisfactory. She put a look of lazy-eyed ecstasy on her face and dropped her head to the man's shoulder.
He began to sing, "With all my heart, my burning heart—I love you. With every breath that I take—asleep or awake—I love you."
Although his voice was astoundingly good, Paige thought, "How am I going to help break into honking laughter?"
The blond girl centered her attention on Restwick Carnes. "Having fun?"
"Naturally!"
Paige wanted to query sourly. "Can't you say anything but 'Naturally'?" Instead, she snuggled even closer to Rusty and watched the girl, knowing because of familiarity, is heated from a central plant.

He began to sing louder. Just as he had intended, it brought Eugenia to the railing of the next lanai.
"Hello, Rusty dear." She was crowded into the corner where the glass doors were buckled back, as near as possible to the Restwick Carnes porch.
"Hello, Eugenia." Immediately he switched to the old popular "I Get Along Without You Very Well," a childish musical slap in the face.
Eugenia could not help but recognize the insult. Yet her pink and white features did not change in the least. Paige was forced to admit, so sweetly limpid, and those lips curved in a demure smile and that very long blond hair, flying wildly in the damp ocean wind.
"I've always adored that song," she said without a semblance of rancor. The demure smile widened into one more intimate. "Of course I've always adored all your singing."
"Naturally! I'm darned good."
In an undertone, Paige commented, "I can't say the same for your whistling."
Eugenia was speaking again. "I love every song you've ever sung to me. Rusty." She cast Paige an oblique look to see if the remark had registered.
Paige looked back and was surprised to note that there was nothing sinister about Eugenia. For an instant her totally disarming appearance made Paige feel, no matter how much she disliked the girl, that she had wronged her. Still, Paige knew that Eugenia was too clever to parade her hatred for Rusty to detect. As Paige recalled that peculiar tenseness on the blonde's face she realized it had not been hatred anyway. It had been a sort of clammy avarice and certainly Eugenia would never show that.

Again the blond girl centered her attention on Restwick Carnes. "Having fun?"
"Naturally!"
Paige wanted to query sourly. "Can't you say anything but 'Naturally'?" Instead, she snuggled even closer to Rusty and watched the girl, knowing because of familiarity, is heated from a central plant.

Just then a couple of Navy officers appeared behind Eugenia and glimpsed Paige. Her startling beauty brought from them the rowdy up-to-date attribute, "Whew! Whew!" Spaced, whistled compliment with accent on the last syllable.
While she had been able to buffet all Rusty's slurs with smiles, that slangy whistle seemed to be more than Eugenia could endure. She disappeared without further words to Rusty, drawing with her the reluctant officers.
In case Eugenia was listening, Restwick Carnes took the precaution of yelling, "Paige, dearest, it's beginning to get really choppy. Let's get the steward to close these doors. Then I'll take you into a blanket, do the same for myself, and we'll nap on the chaise longue until dinner."
Paige noticed that his arm was still about her. "All right, Mr. 'Boyer-Taylor,' relax now," she ordered in a crisp undertone. "The show seems to be over for a while." She began untangling herself from his affectionate grasp.
Show was right. Paige felt like an actress who has just stepped off-stage. Gone, all mannerisms, all pretense. Wrapped in a consoling green wool blanket, she was glad to close her eyes, to lie at ease on their small deck and listen to dull-gray waves vaulting toward the closed glass doors. The smoke of Rusty's cigarette floated toward Paige, soft, fragrant and caressing, in a way.

She had been surprised when Rusty actually stayed on the lanai. She had figured his remark strictly for Eugenia's benefit and had expected him to dash into the bar or to the card room or for a walk about the deck, in his usual nervous fashion.
Suddenly she knew, with a feeling of disbelief, that she liked having him with her. Perhaps it was because his kindred anguish eased hers simply with its presence.
Paige smiled to herself and fell asleep.

President Gives Tip on Coffee-Making
WASHINGTON, (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt confided today that the President considers himself something of an expert in coffee-making and she gave her press conference his recipe.
"My husband tells me," Mrs. Roosevelt related, "that if you dry out your used coffee grounds and then add a teaspoonful of fresh coffee and boil it up it will make good coffee."
The White House will be rationed on coffee, Mrs. Roosevelt said.
"No one will be given more than one cup of coffee a day," Mrs. Roosevelt said, except on such formal state affairs, as the state dinner by the President honoring President Carlos Arroyo Del Rio, president of Ecuador. For this dinner, a demi-tasse will be served.
Asked if the limit of one cup a day would apply to the President, Mrs. Roosevelt said it would. She explained that because he likes cafe au lait, which is a cup of half coffee and half hot milk, he would be able to get his remaining half cup as after-dinner coffee in the evening.
A reporter noted that it was rather warm in the White House this morning and asked if there were any heat regulations to conserve fuel governing the executive mansion. Mrs. Roosevelt explained that the White House, like other government buildings, is heated from a central plant.
Mrs. Roosevelt said that she had no plans for a social calendar at the White House this winter.
Mrs. Roosevelt was asked whether, as has been published, she was the first to advocate a $25,000 annual limit and she replied that she had not been. She said if she mentioned it in her column it was because she had seen it elsewhere.

Anniversaries Observed with Potluck Supper

Observing the occasion of his birthday anniversary, a number of intimate friends of Dr. L. Loring Brock gathered at the Brock home Sunday evening, for a jolly surprise party. Although taken completely unaware, Dr. and Mrs. Brock extended a most gracious welcome to the guests and provided delightful hospitalities.

A potluck supper launched the evening's gaieties, with a large assortment of deliciously prepared viands enjoyed by all. The aftermath of the sociability of the supper hour was carried out in the informality of the entire evening, with the guests lingering until a late hour.

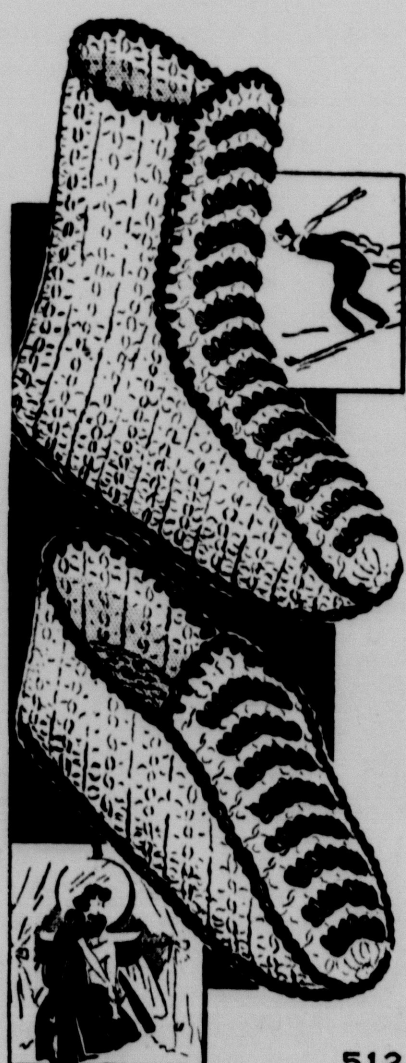

Slumber Party Entertained by Jean Everhart

Miss Jean Everhart promoted a gay party during the week end when she was a charming young hostess to a slumber party. The affair assembled a group of schoolmates who have had several of these merry get-togethers during the school months. Games were gaily played during the evening, and followed by the midnight snack of most appealing dishes. The slumber party included all the antics that make one a perfect success of such an occasion, with little else accounted for until the late hours of the morning. A breakfast completed the party's many pleasures.

Dr., Mrs. Haines Entertain with Sunday Supper

Dr. and Mrs. Francis M. Haines added a delightful affair to the weekend quota, when they were genial hosts to a supper party Sunday evening. The attractive home of the young couple on Rawling Street, was a perfect and cheerful setting for the small affair, which assembled a few intimate friends. Covers for eight were laid at the handsomely appointed dining table which was covered with an exquisite white linen cloth and centered with a large Christmas candle, which cast a soft glow over the entire room. The courses were most appetizing, and the dinner hour a very happy one. Informal visiting during the evening, with the cordial host and hostess extending most delightful pleasures and hospitalities were enjoyed.

But even before nightfall the work of reconstruction had begun. The fury abated but the work increased. Ships were raised in the ensuing twelve months and sent back to sea to face the enemy. This was accomplished by rushing thousands of workmen to the islands from the mainland.

"It is the spirit of these workmen that makes Pearl Harbor the grandest base in the world," said Furlong.

Admiral Nimitz, at a press conference, declared the war would last "until we have completely smashed" Japanese power in the Pacific.

"Our shipyards and aircraft are functioning very rapidly in producing the extra equipment," he said.

"We have used what we have to the best advantage and even though we have taken considerable loss, we have made the enemy suffer much heavier losses. Our air forces are doing a grand job, and every time they meet the Japs they take a toll something of the order of five to one."

Admiral Nimitz concluded that "from now on we can expect more and more surface actions, because the enemy's carrier strength is becoming depleted."

As for the U. S. he said, "We have carriers coming out of the yards and expect to build up our carrier force to be a tremendous scourge and threat to Japan in the Western Pacific."

One thing that pleased the admiral as he discussed the past 12 months was "the restoration of confidence by the people of the United States in their armed forces."

When he came to the islands after last December 7, he detected plenty of evidence of uneasiness and lack of confidence, he related. Everywhere he heard the questions "where was the Navy?" and "what is the Navy doing?"

"These questions have been answered," Nimitz continued, by raids on the Marshalls, Wake and Marcus, by the Battle of the Coral Sea, the Battle of Midway, and the furious engagements in the Solomons.

"In other words," he said, "as strength gradually developed, we extended ourselves a little more and that is the process we are passing through now."

"Emphatically, yes!" he answered.

there were 86 ships of various types moored in the great naval base there when their envoys talked peace in Washington and their fliers dropped the first bombs of war.

Two task forces were at sea. There were no aircraft carriers in the anchorage.

New Ships Launched

The coming and going of the first New Year's eve of Pearl Harbor will give the enemy added worries, for busy U. S. ship builders were honoring the occasion by sending new ships of war down the ways.

Scheduled to be launched today was one of the mightiest battleships ever built anywhere—the 45,000-ton New Jersey, at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

At Tampa, Fla., seven warships were to be launched and a Navy receiving station commissioned today. The new ships include six mine-sweepers and the great destroyer tender Piedmont.

At the Fore River Yard of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation at Quincy, Mass., the carrier Bunker Hill, first ship to be dubbed after the Revolutionary battle site, will be launched today.

The destroyer Sigsbee was launched today at Kearny, N. J.

Tomorrow (Tuesday) will see the cruiser Miami hit water at the Cramp Shipbuilding Company Yard in Philadelphia.

Yesterday, the aircraft carrier Belleau Wood, 10,000 tons, skidded down into the Delaware from the New York Shipbuilding Yard at Camden, N. J., where the Independence was launched August 22 and the Princeton christened Nov. 9.

At Bath, Me., yesterday, the Bath Iron Works launched the destroyer Thatcher.

In Boston, three combat vessels were launched—a special ship and two escort craft.

While exact specifications of the New Jersey remained a closely-guarded wartime secret, the Fourth Naval District Public Relations Office called attention to this unofficial description in "Jane's Fighting Ships."

Length 880 feet, beam 108 feet. Displacement at full load approximately 52,000 tons. A main battery of nine 16-inch guns. Speed "over 30 knots."

FOOD AND MANPOWER PROGRAMS CENTRALIZED UNDER NEW DIRECTORS

This was the first official word on Hershey's position since he and his agency were placed under McNutt by presidential order giving McNutt control over allocation of military and civilian manpower.

The navy may still enlist volunteers 17 years of age, as it has been doing, and both the army and navy may enlist specialists over 38 years old, but the order was designed to give unified supervision over military and civilian manpower procurement and disposition for all men between the ages of 18 and 38.

Wickard, who estimates that up to 25 percent of the 1943 output will be required for lend-lease and the armed forces, takes over the marketing and distribution supervision formerly exercised by the war production board.

Included in this is supervision of food rationing, although these programs will continue to be administered through the office of price administration.

Wickard, a Hoosier farmer who says that "good food and plenty of it is one of the best missionaries for democracy that I know of," becomes the fourth single director of a national resource in President Roosevelt's official war family.

The others are: manpower, Paul V. McNutt; rubber, William M. Jeffers, and petroleum, Harold Ickes.

Wickard has served notice that he will make every effort to raise next year's production allotment for farm machinery, which has been restricted by WPB to 20 percent of the 1940 production, as against 80 percent for 1942. Wickard wants 50 percent of the 1940 output next year.

Under the new setup, the agriculture department is divided into two main branches, one for production and the other for distribution. Wickard will appoint a director for each.

Meanwhile, it was reported that McNutt, in his new role as manpower chief, would retain Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey as director of selective service.

Hershey long has urged that voluntary enlistments be halted, a step which President Roosevelt ordered Saturday in placing McNutt in charge of all manpower recruiting, military as well as civilian.

To guide government agencies in placing war contracts, the War Manpower Commission issued today a new list of 270 industrial areas showing current labor shortages in 102 of them, anticipated shortages in 77, and labor surpluses in 91.

Chairman McNutt of WMC said the list represents a "positive approach to the need for placing contracts in areas in which workers would be idle, unemployed or employed in producing materials less essential to the war effort."

He conceded that manpower was only one of several considerations that guide procurement officials in negotiating war contracts.

Labor shortages were reported in the following Ohio areas: Akron, Canton, Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, Fremont, Hamilton, Lima, Lorain, Marion, Piqua, Sandusky, Warren.

Ohio areas in which labor shortages are anticipated included: Cincinnati, Fostoria, Mansfield, Toledo, Youngstown.

KIDNAPED BABY FOUND AND 5 HELD BY G-MEN IN SCREWIEST CASE YET

automobile. The infant's mother, an asylum employee, was at lunch.

Columbus detectives followed clues throughout eastern and central Ohio and questioned a Marion woman without solving the case. After 10 days, the federal Lindbergh law against kidnapping permitted the FBI to take up the hunt but nothing was reported until the baby was discovered in a Portsmouth rooming house, although the chase led into Kentucky and West Virginia.

Mrs. Creameans, who worked in the asylum, only a half-day in July, was quoted by Scully as saying she had made elaborate plans since that time to make the child her own. She previously had been employed in the Columbus State Hospital, he said.

Suran said Chapman was believed to have rented the room in which Mrs. Creameans and the baby were found Saturday night and to have been with her in Columbus when the abduction occurred. He did not explain the connection of the other suspects with the case.

The FBI at Cincinnati announced in a prepared statement that the child had been found. Details of the reported confession were not released and newsmen were denied permis-

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—(AP)—Early grain market strength that raised prices almost a cent a bushel faded away and, as buying subsided, quotations retreated to small net losses in some cases.

December contracts, on which deliveries are now being made, were most in demand, apparently reflecting the fact that spot grain prices are quoted several cents higher than futures. This was offset, however, by profit taking and increased caution of most dealers due to the fact that at the day's high prices were around top levels in the last two or three months.

Wheat closed 1/8c higher to 1/4c lower compared with Saturday, December 12 1/2c, May 13 3/4c; corn 1/4-1/2c lower, December 87-87 1/2c, May 90-90 1/2c; oats 1/4-1/2c lower; rye unchanged to 1/2c off; soybeans 3/4c higher.

A federal source, declining to be quoted by name, termed the case "the screwiest kidnapping I've seen yet." He declined to amplify the statement.

FBI agents said, "we're not through with it." Informally, it was suggested that other persons are under surveillance and more arrests may follow.

How Mrs. Creameans was able to keep the baby two months despite widespread police search was merely a matter of conjecture although FBI men said "the kind of people she was around didn't ask too many questions and she, in turn, didn't give any information if they asked."

"They just don't do that in that part of the country," one added.

ANNUAL GRANGE CONVENTION TO BEGIN TUESDAY

Granges of County Will Be Represented at State Meeting

The seventieth annual session of the Ohio State Grange will open Tuesday morning in the ballroom of the Deshler-Wallick Hotel, Columbus, with State Master Paul McNish presiding. The membership of the State Grange consists of the state officers and delegates elected by the subordinate granges of the counties of the state. Each county has one or more delegates, depending on the total Grange membership of the county. These delegates are elected for a term of two years. The delegates representing Fayette County were chosen last year. They are, Elmer McCoy of Fayette Grange, and Maurice Sollars of Selden Grange.

This year will be unprecedented in the number of delegates who can not attend the state session because of working in a defense plant or because of the scarcity of farm labor. In such cases the elected alternate is to be the delegate. When neither delegate nor alternate can attend, Grange law provides that the Pomona Master, the Pomona overseer and the Pomona lecturer, shall appoint a delegate. Since, one of the delegates, Maurice Sollars, nor his alternate, Beryl Cavine, can attend this year, the Pomona officers have named Glen Rhonemus to take Sollars' place.

In the Grange, the wives or husbands of elected delegates also serve as voting members. Where delegates are married, as they usually are, this rule has the effect of doubling the representation from the different counties.

While the time of the delegates is largely taken up with work on committees and discussion and voting on questions affecting agriculture, and the policies of the Grange, yet there is some recreation in the form of ritualism, music, entertainment and lectures by noted speakers.

Among the speakers will be, Past National Master L. J. Taber, Tuesday at 2:30 P. M., following the annual address of State Master Paul McNish. At 6:30 Wednesday evening the annual banquet will feature Governor John W. Bricker, Thurman (Dusty) Miller and the Clermont County Grange Quartet.

A series of resolutions adopted by Selden Grange will be presented at the state convention.

One resolution requests the rationing board and the Office of Price Administration and Office of Defense Transportation to grant such grange members as will share their cars with neighbors, additional gasoline to meet their requirements.

Another resolution opposes diversion of the gas tax to other than highway purposes, due to decreased revenues.

Third Resolution: Whereas, farmers of Fayette County have received their Certificates of War Necessity from the Office of Defense Transportation, and in cases of the small pick-up truck, there seems to have been a tendency to restrict the mileage allowance too severely. In many instances the cut amounts to 65 to 75 percent of the previous mileage. On large farms, and with reduced help, and probably due to the lack of sufficient information being placed on the application form for the certificates of war necessity, it is believed that the importance of the farm pick-up truck, in the production of food, has been underestimated by O.D.T. officials.

BE IT RESOLVED: that the O.D.T. revise their allowance upward in many cases on farm trucks.

Fourth Resolution: Whereas, we as farm folks, realize that out utmost efforts will be required to produce enough food and fibre for ourselves and our allies during the war program of 1943, we, therefore, pledge the hearty support of the Grange in the production program. Also, we are aware that the necessary production of

THREE INCH SNOW FALLS OVER REGION

Drop in Temperature Is Also Recorded

Starting about dusk Saturday evening, another snowfall which reached about three inches in depth, fell over this part of Ohio. Part of the snow melted over Sunday, and as a result of falling temperatures Sunday night, streets, walks and many roads were glassy Monday.

It was the third snowfall of two inches or more so far this season.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. MAUDE BLAKE

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude Blake were held at the Klever Funeral Home at 1:30 o'clock Monday morning with Rev. George B. Parkin, pastor of Grace Church, delivering the funeral sermon. The minister also offered prayer, read from the Scriptures and gave the memorial tribute. Mrs. Paul Fitzwater sang the two hymns "Good Night Here and Good Morning up There" and "The Old Rugged Cross."

The pallbearers for the interment in the Washington Cemetery were William, Howard, Henry, John and Donald Gardner and Paul Southworth.

materials and equipment for the armed forces and the home front, will tax to the limit the capacities of factories, mines and transportation systems; therefore we believe that the loss of precious man-hours by strikes and absenteeism is entirely unjustified. If the War Labor Board can not prevent such unnecessary loss of time, we recommend that the Congress devise a plan to meet the situation.

The members of Selden Grange wish to add their efforts to that of their fellow member, Mrs. Amanda Paxson, and her organization of "Military Mothers and Wives," for their work in this connection.

Fifth Resolution: Whereas, the Grange is founded upon principles of liberty, democracy and justice for all, and has withstood the test of time, and

Whereas, its program is broad enough to meet the problems of agriculture during war time and through the peace that is to follow, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: that we make every effort to preserve its fundamental purposes and ideals, its name and identity as a separate and independent institution; for we believe that, by keeping the Grange on the fraternal foundation builded by its Founders, it can best serve mankind and cooperate with "all other orders and associations that seek to promote human welfare."

Sixth Resolution: Whereas, prices on many farm commodities are frozen over night, relative to a certain past period of time, and in many cases this makes it impossible for many small handlers to sell without loss, and they, unwilling to assume the loss, immediately stop buying, and this in turn forces farm prices lower. It is believed that a resolution should be passed asking that a committee be appointed to see that the freezing of farm prices does not tend to force such prices lower and to stop the flow of farm produce to market, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: that this matter be brought to the attention of the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Claude Wickard.

Seventh Resolution: Whereas, the present Eastern War Time in use in Ohio, greatly interferes with school and other schedules; causes additional use of electricity; and is a great inconvenience in many ways, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED: that legislation be enacted, putting Ohio in the Central Standard Time Division.

AIR RAID TEST HELD IN CITY IS A SUCCESS

Large Number in Defense Organization Report in Short Order

An air raid test held here at 12:25 A. M. Monday was described as "highly successful" from the point of bringing together the main body of the defense organization here.

Having had advance word of the time of the test, many enrolled in the organization were either on hands when the alarm was sounded, or poured into the City Building to report within a few minutes after the alarm sounded.

The Court House clock, siren on the Court House, whistles of various factories, and siren on the City Building all contributed to the noisy alarm.

Within a minute's time air raid wardens, auxiliary firemen, auxiliary policemen, those in charge of the "control room," Boy Scouts, motorcycle patrol, and the entire setup, were beginning to arrive.

Within five minutes most of those who were to report had reached the City Building and reported to their respective chiefs.

Division heads of the Defense Council, as well as general chairman Edwin Ducey expressed themselves as well pleased with results of the test.

TWO SERVICES HELD FOR MEN IN THE SERVICE

Honor Roll Is Dedicated at Grace Church on Sunday Morning

Two special services, both largely attended, were held at Grace Methodist Church, Sunday, honoring the men in the armed forces.

At the morning services the roll of honor bearing the names of members and friends of the church who are in the armed forces, was dedicated.

A large placard bearing photos of most of the men was placed under the American flag on the rostrum during the dedicatory services.

The honor roll contains the names of some 85 men who are wearing the uniform, many of them being stationed at far-flung battlefronts.

Special responsive readings for the occasion added to the impressiveness of the dedication and Rev. George B. Parkin paid beautiful tribute to the men whose names appear on the honor roll, the title of his sermon being "Bridges Into a Better World."

Special music was provided for the services. At the evening services, in charge of the Youth Fellowship group, and presided over by the Miss Barbara Parker, were honored all men in the armed forces, and was in the nature of a combined service, with members of other churches and the public generally having been invited.

The Girls' Triple Trio, directed by Mrs. Paul Fitzwater, gave appropriate numbers and Miss Joan Wilson, reading from high up in the dome of the church, gave a beautiful tribute to the soldiers.

Rev. George B. Parkin, pastor of the church, delivered the address which was apropos of the occasion and in which he praised the brave men who are fighting the battles for world freedom.

"This means that we are a little more than two-fifths of the way toward our goal," he said. The goal set for Fayette County is $1250.

Christmas Seals funds, according to Warren M. Durkee, president of the Fayette County Christmas Seal committee, are used in indigent cases, for chest X-rays for positive tubercular reactors, preventative surgery—such as removal of diseased tonsils, and supplying active cases with necessities as ordered by the attending physicians.

An educational campaign is continuously carried on through the schools and the county health nurses. Supplies and equipment for the quarterly free chest clinic are provided from Christmas Seal money when other funds are depleted or not available.
